

Mateo Hysa

Entry 1

This semester's first full week was quite interesting. Having to learn using online resources still feels new even though we were doing so for most of last semester. Writing for engineering is a pretty cool class so far as it is not too much work and it will be extremely useful in the future when I will be working as an engineer. I can already tell that the text that we are using for this class is like a template that engineers utilize to write well. I also like the discussion forums as we are able to connect with peers and expand our knowledge on certain subjects while getting feedback on our own posts. Overall, my experience in this new semester, and new class has been great.
