Entry 3

I received feedback regarding my technical description draft and I am currently revising my description. I was told that my writing was very descriptive and interesting but it was not formatted the way that technical descriptions usually are. I have been working on making the draft more enticing and technical. I separated the draft into separate sections in order to sway away from the essay style writing that I have become accustomed to. Additionally, I am trying to find a way that I could incorporate a glossary and legend into the text to make my writing easier to understand as there is some language that is very specific to the topic that I am writing about including the type of laser on the mouse, and what certain abbreviations stand for.
